In the event of rain this afternoon, "Twelfth Night" will be postponed until Saturday afternoon at the same hour and place. If rain also prevents "As You Like It" to-night, that performance also will go over until Saturday night.

If rain should prevent either or both of the postponed performances on Saturday, the audience and actors will adjourn to the ball-room of the New Willard Hotel instead of the Masonic Temple. The pennant at half mast on the Evans Building wireless tower will be the signal for a postponed

Last night's rain checks will be good for any performance, but if an afternoon performance is desired instead of an evening, reserved seat coupons must be exchanged.

After coquetting with the sun all day, the clouds hovering over Washington concentrated themselves into one mass of inky blackness at 7:45 o'clock last night, and the downpour put an end to aspirations of the Coburn Players, and the Playground Association. As a result, the performance of "As You Like It." on the White House lawn, was postponed until this evening.
